Hunger Project Ideas

Powered by Students nourishing neighbors

Supporting a local hunger organization is still possible in a virtual way, or when you need to be physical distancing. Hunger organizations have created creative and unique ways to volunteer virtually or to engage with their organization with limited or no interaction. Below is a list of examples of on how organizations and/or community members are still collecting food, raising money or educating people about food insecurity in their community. Below are examples to consider as you work on your Explore.Act.Tell. Project.
